P.S.

Nash sleeps over

Kansas City Councilman Troy Nash probably won't get much sleep tonight.

If the leaking roof doesn't keep him up, the mice scurrying nearby might. Nonetheless, Nash is planning a sleep-over at Fire Station 34 to get a feel for conditions at Kansas City Fire Department facilities. Nash supports adding $350,000 to the proposed budget to improve firehouses.

"We need to take action now" to improve the worst fire stations, Nash said Thursday at a council budget meeting. He plans to sleep at several stations in the next six weeks. But, pointing out that he is married and working on a graduate degree, he said he wouldn't be able to sleep at all the firehouses.
